

WORLD LEADERS AT THE SPECTRUM OF DIVERSITY WEEK

The Spectrum of Diversity week was a great opening for the New Year. Our goal as an institution was to start the year exposing our world changers to the importance of diversity in economic growth and development. Each day of the week was a time to reflect and deeply analyze what those colours were representing.

The emphasis for Day 1 was the color of our great nation Nigeria. We engaged ourselves to identify key challenges that existed in our country especially in this period of economic uncertainties. Our students recommended solutions based on their analysis of the identified challenges and discussed ways they as individuals and future professionals can make life better.

Day 2 was the moment we understood the relevance of global peace and how each nation contributes to this goal. Our students raised initiatives addressing the varying behavioral pattern in our society. They also discussed how to improve inter-tribal/racial relationship by understanding the origin of creation is God. Despite the differences in skin tone, language, climate and general way of life, we all share the common desire for love and acceptance. These are the two factors that can promote global peace.

At the day 3 and 4 events, the major role of education in development was the focus of the day. The vision of our institution was discussed in details and how the school builds initiatives, creativity and discovers talents. Education for us is beyond the acquisition of literacy skills it is about preparing the next generation of labor force that will improve the overall standard of living through innovation, discipline and creativity.

In closing the week, we had a great time where everyone came in dressed in their traditional attire. This reminded us of the beauty in our diversity and how understanding the common goal of excellence will cause us to indeed change the world. We also held prayer sessions as the place of God in human existence is critical.

At the end of the week, one thing was made clear, the solutions to world problems will be solved by Edidot students! We look forward to more self-discoveries in the New Year.
